Macro photography (took upside down)

Rule of Thirds

Rule of space

I feel like this lab is going to benefit me significantly. As I'm learning media design primarily I haven't thought much on picture taking and the role it plays in social media. I believe I will take this lab into consideration in the future when trying to find the best pictures to use and to edit when working on a social site. What I believe will be the most utilized by me is the up close pictures as well as the dynamic portrait. I like the way that close up pictures come out and the amount of detail they provide.

Personally they catch my eye when I come across them on social media and thus I believe it's a good strategy for picture taking. The dynamic portrait will be important as that's the 2nd focus of photography as it's basically the editing. While I'm not sure how often I'll be required to take photos for my career, I believe that if I ever do come across a time I will be more prepared due to practicing it. Due to the fact social media is one of the biggest marketing strategies now, I do believe we will have to get more and more creative.
